

Matthew Fox

Matthew Fox is an ordained priest and postmodern theologian. He is a writer and teacher. As a lecturer, he travels throughout North America, Europe and Australia with a message of ecological and social justice, mysticism and blessing.

Fox is the founder and president of the New University of Creation Spirituality in Oakland, California. He is the editor-in-chief of Original Blessing, A Creation Spirituality Network Newsletter. His best-selling book, Original Blessing, is among twenty-one books he has authored.

He is the recipient of the Tikkun National Ethics Award, the Courage of Conscience Award by the Peace Abbey of Sherborn, Massachusetts, and the New York Open Center Tenth Anniversary Award for Achievement in Creative Spirituality. His autobiography, Confessions: The Making of a Post-Denominational Priest, was published in 1996.

Renewing Education through Cosmology and Creativity

Saturday, August 29 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.
James A. Little Theater

Matthew Fox speaks about bringing back awe, wonder and a sense of the sacred to education. He poses questions about education and the universe, the meaning of creativity and resurrecting the learning experience.

Trance, Dance and the Reinvention of Ritual and Community

Sunday, August 30 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Strictly Dancing

In this experiential workshop, the principles of renewing rituals are discussed. Then participants will dance to "house" or ambient rave music for learning to occur through the body as well as the mind. "Trance dancing" is about dancing with the Beloved in the presence of community.
